Executive Summary

2020 has been an unprecedented year for the world. Financial institutions across the world and in India are grappling with uncertainty and effects of the COVID-19 pandemic. India has taken stringent measures to curtail the impact of the corona virus outbreak through a series of lockdowns. While this has had adverse effects on the economy and on credit growth as a whole during the peak period, the Unlock India initiatives have gained momentum as the economy slowly limps back to normal.

The data in this report showcases the trends in lending through data submitted by NBFC Fintech lenders. As expected, the year that began on a bullish note, in the first quarter saw retail credit growth tanking in the next two quarters. However, credit demand is surging once again as financial institutions cautiously loosen purse strings to lend again.

Loan originations went down significantly in the first two quarters of FY 2021 as compared to the previous year. Personal loans saw a significant fall in fresh loan disbursements with a negative growth rate of 71% in JAS '20 as compared to JFM'20.

Fintechs continue to focus on low-ticket short-tenure Personal and Consumer loans with 87% of the loans disbursed falls under these product categories, with MSMEs being hit hard by the pandemic, business loans plummeted in the first quarter but has seen a 15% growth in number of loans disbursed in second quarter. While the market share of Fintechs catering to business loans is less than 3%, Fintechs have been better able to manage delinquencies than the rest of the lenders.

While uncertainty will continue to loom large in face of the crisis, lenders who are able to adapt to the new normal will continue to grow. The inherently agile Fintechs that have adopted more advanced lending business models as compared to traditional lenders, will reap the benefits of their highly digitized offerings, ability to leverage new data using latest analytical tools, and using innovative ways of assessing risk.

COVID-19 Impact On Fintech

The adverse effects of COVID-19 have been seen in most of 2020 across the globe. The multiple lockdowns severely curtailed economic activity and led to an adverse impact on the retail credit growth across the country.

While originations plummeted and most lenders focused on collections, the rules of lending were steadily changed with a cautious approach adopted by most lenders as they slowly recovered in the third quarter. Managing delinquencies was of paramount importance during 1st & 2nd quarter of FY 2021 even as payment pattern shifted and moratorium extended to borrowers.

The government on its part to build an 'Atmanirbhar Bharat' (self reliant India) amidst the COVID-19 crisis launched various stimulus initiatives to help the industry. Key measures adopted by the government included a comprehensive financial package to infuse liquidity in the industry to provide the MSME industry with necessary capital by way of collateral free loans of ₹300,000 crore, ₹20,000 crore of subordinated debt and ₹50,000 crore equity infusion.

While it has been a tough period, there have been glimmers of positivity. Despite the global slowdown, India's Fintechs raised almost $1.7billion, more than twice that of last year's 726.6Mn*. Spurred by availability of smartphones and data, Lending continues to attract Fintechs to its 300 million + underserved consumer category where demand continues to be high.

The rough year faced by many Fintech lenders, including aggregators of lenders has also brought about several key lessons on the basics of underwriting as well as collection practices. While new Fintechs have been able to attain scale rapidly, it is important that they calibrate their risk processes using appropriate models and scorecards, regularly monitor portfolio and segment customers appropriately. Fintechs also have the power to leverage new initiatives such as Account aggregators and protocols for democratization of data such as Open Credit Enablement Network (OCEN) which could be game-changing for lending. Further the digital India story continues to gain traction with new technologies to digitize processes being adopted by Fintechs and consumers in not just digital payments, but across consumer journeys using technologies such as Aadhaar based e-sign, video KYC etc. Fintechs are well placed to adopt these new technologies and data sources to further spur on financial inclusion.

Fintech Average Ticket Size

- The average ticket size for personal loans and consumer loans has fallen significantly to under ₹9000 in the 2nd quarter. This could be because of the increased number of loans for consumer durables that have seen a spike during covid months as people splurged on home appliances and other durables. Short term low ticket loans have done better than higher ticket loans leading to a drop in average ticket sizes.
