Boost your acquisition strategies
Consumers have an abundance of pent-up demand and are ready to spend. In fact, many individuals now have stronger personal finances than they did before the pandemic. Several industries such as travel, retail, and restaurants are already experiencing rapid growth, while telecom and automobile industries remain strong. At the same time, the uptick in e-commerce and online shopping that took place during the last few years is likely to stick, if not accelerate.

Our acquisition solutions help marketers take advantage of this demand — and capture not only new customers, but also a bigger share of the consumer wallet.

We offer consumer data and tools to help marketers gain an extensive view of consumers’ financial pictures and more confidently refine acquisition audiences. Plus, our focus on digital acceleration enables you to reach target consumers in relevant ways across preferred channels. When it’s time to bring new customers on board, we help you maximize the sale and deliver a positive customer experience to build a lasting relationship.

Data and metrics to drive acquisition

Consumer wallet data to define your prospect audience

Expand and refine your acquisition targeting with insight into the consumer wallet. Target audiences based on their likely financial profile. Find optimal prospect audiences with the financial capacity to spend, invest, or meet financial commitments. Maximize sales opportunities and deliver the right treatment level from day one.

- Cash inflows: Target prospects by their estimated total income — salaries, plus investment, retirement, and business income
- What’s in the bank: Reach prospects with desired levels of invested assets or with specific investment preferences*
- Discretionary funds: Differentiate prospects by their likely capacity to have funds to spend, save, or invest
- Credit needs and usage: Incorporate data on aggregated credit behaviors and outstanding balances
- Ability to pay: Understand prospects’ likely ability to meet financial commitments, especially important for marketing products with long-term contracts or payment plans
- Small business: Differentiate small businesses by their estimated assets and financial strength

Advanced segmentation to deliver the right offer and message

Combine your own data with actionable asset-based or economic-based segmentation tools to define and engage acquisition audiences. Understand your best target audiences, what they are like, and where to find them. Ensure the right message is delivered via the right channel.

Market-level financial metrics to find the next hot geography

Examine market-level financial data to find geographies likely to hold growth opportunities. Find geographies with rising affluence, income, or assets. Assess size and share of outstanding assets or credit in target markets. Identify markets where you should reduce your footprint or efforts.
