3 Reasons
you should contribute data to Commercial Financial Network

Commercial Financial Network (CFN) is one of the largest commercial credit data exchanges in the U.S. spanning many categories of business information.

The overarching goal of CFN is to expand access to capital and services for American small businesses.

1 Industry Leading Data

Contributors gain reciprocal access to the complete set of contributed data, deep commercial analytics, solutions, and reports from Equifax.

CFN is an anonymous exchange; contributor identity is never disclosed.

2 Best in Class Governance, Security, and Compliance

Housed and protected by Equifax, a trusted steward of commercial data.

Governed via a robust infrastructure refined over 25 years, enforcing rules written by contributors.

Guided by a contributor-based Advisory Board.

Continuously monitored to ensure compliance and safeguard value and security for members.

3 Important Use Cases and Insights

CFN helps address a variety of use cases including new account opening, credit risk decisioning, model development, and more.

Contributors receive exclusive access to member-contributed data and proprietary commercial products.

Opportunity to leverage Equifax commercial and consumer data, deep analytic expertise, and industry knowledge.

With over 120 years of history managing data — consumer, employment, property, wealth and more — Equifax is already a trusted industry partner in leveraging and protecting consumer and commercial information. Contribute to CFN without fees, leverage the benefits of best-in-class data security and governance, and — most importantly — gain access to the actionable insights CFN provides.
