

Sid Singh

President, U.S. Information Solutions

Sid Singh is President of U.S. Information Solutions at Equifax. In this role, Singh is responsible for leveraging the company's unique data assets, technology, analytics and expertise to create unparalleled insights to help businesses and consumers make more informed financial decisions.

Singh joined Equifax from Global Payments Inc., where he served as group president of Integrated Solutions & Vertical Markets and was instrumental in developing the technology and software-led business strategies that helped transform the company into a highly differentiated payments leader. Singh also led the acquisition and integration of multiple businesses, and held executive leadership roles there including Senior Vice President of Global Product, as well as Vice President and regional head of Asia Pacific.

During his tenure with Global Payments, Singh was responsible for leading all aspects of the company's international software business, including sales, marketing, product, research and development, and operations. He achieved strong financial results by opening new vertical markets, delivering advanced analytics platforms, and developing new solutions in multiple industry verticals.

Singh has also held senior management positions with HSBC and Citibank. He currently serves on the Boards of Paya, a U.S. payment processor; VantageScore LLC; and the Consumer Data Industry Association (CDIA).

Singh holds a bachelor's degree in mechanical engineering from Punjab Technical University and an MBA from the Institute of Management Technology.
