

Talent Report Employment Monitoring

Monitor your employee's post-hire employment status

The Work Number
offers verified
employment data for more than 136M active
employment records
from over 2.5M+
employer contributors.²

Having a hybrid workforce can help provide employers and employees with greater flexibility and scalability, but with this approach comes greater concern for employers around how to help lower competitive risk while preserving an employee's focus and productivity. And with predictions of more than 36 million employees working remotely by the year 2025¹, the need to monitor an employee's employment status will continue to grow.

Talent Report™ Employment Monitoring provides employers the ability to help mitigate risk while upholding an employee's integrity by monitoring their post-hire employment status using verified employment data from The Work Number database. The Work Number® offers verified employment data for more than 136M active employment records from over 2.5M+ employer contributors.² This coverage helps employers reduce risk by ensuring their employees are exclusively employed by their organization which can help solve issues before they arise.

Talent Report Employment Monitoring can be used once pre-hire background checks are complete and your new employee has been onboarded. This helps employers to:

Lower Competitive Risk
by ensuring employees are exclusively employed by their organization.

Better protect confidential
information or
"trade secrets".

Confirm an employee
is not in violation of their terms of employment.

Preserve employee focus
and productivity.
